Part III - Places: The links that make up the unity of the Church.

The links can be built on three attitudes/virtues: Encounter - Dialogue - Respect. On the basis of these three attitudes/virtues, the unity of the Church, without clericalism, fanaticism, intolerance and racism, can truly come about.

This is the central question of the whole Synod:

1. How is this journey together being carried out today, which allows the Church to proclaim the Gospel, according to the mission entrusted to her, at different levels (from the local to the universal), and what steps does the Spirit invite us to take in order to grow as a Synodal Church?

In many realities, this joint journey is still something of a utopia, in fact it doesn't happen, mainly because priests and bishops aren't interested in an outgoing, synodal, Church of the Poor, Samaritan, prophetic, Amazonian Church.

The Spirit always invites us to be Samaritans, merciful; unfortunately, many people like to close themselves off to their own interests, practising the politics of inertia: whatever Pope Francis says, we listen to, it goes in one ear and out the other, and then we do everything as before. We need a radical change of Christian attitude: to return to the Gospel of Jesus of Nazareth. Only in this way will we grow as a Synodal Church.
